SEWER IDEA WINS L. A. SUPPORT

Councilman Allan of Welfare Committee Endorses Outfall Plan

SCHEME IS APPROVED

H. E. Fry Presents Press Suggestion to L. A. Representative

Endorsement of the plan of the Glendale Press for the solution of the sewer problem through the construction of a great commercial outfall by the city of Los Angeles for the use of that city and all surrounding communities, has been given by Robert M. Allan, Los Angeles councilman, chairman of the public welfare committee, and member of the harbor committee and of the health and sanitation committee of Los Angeles.

The endorsement came as the result of a letter soliciting support for the Press idea from H. E. Fry, Glendale, to Mr. Allan. A reply today from Mr. Fry the Press idea is pressed. He said:

"I was so much pleased with the strong statement which appeared in the Press recently on the necessity of an adequate sewer provision that I sent the same to the Hon. Robert M. Allan of the Los Angeles city council. You will be glad to see that he agrees with you as to the solution of this vexatious problem.

"I am sending to Mr. Allan the very strong statement from Friday's Press."

The communication from Mr. Allan to Mr. Fry endorsing the Press idea, under date of March 30, is as follows:

"I have your note of the 28th, together with clipping from the Glendale paper.

"Several times in conference, especially in connection with our regional planning work, I have expressed myself as being in favor of the project as suggested by this editorial. This matter will be gone into at considerable length at the regional planning conference to be held in Long Beach April 1, when a full report of the sanitation committee, which includes sewage disposal, will be rendered. The chairman of this committee, who is the city man-

BOY SCOUTS NO. 3 PLAN NEW HIKE

Easter Celebration to Be Marked by Trip to the Hills

Boy Scout Troop No. 3, under Scoutmaster Frank C. Ayars, which has recently been reorganized under new patrol leaders and assistants, is developing a great deal of pep and planning an Easter hike. The matter was discussed at its meeting Friday night at the Central avenue school and as an effect, camp equipment is being assembled. Just what the objective will be has not yet been determined but it will be somewhere up near the big Tujunga.

The list of new members added to the troop includes Fred Kattleman of troop 5 Alameda, Cal.; Gordon Bevans of troop No. 2, Kearney, Neb.; Sidney Sherland of troop No. 11, Evanston, Ill.; and Edward Schaeffer of troop No. 65, Los Angeles. Other members of the troop are: Scouts Lyman Bosserman, Eugene Kille, Kenneth Hellyer, James and Robert Reinhard, Nathan Finch, Alexander McPherson and Arthur Kilpatrick.

During a recent swimming trip, several of the boys took their swimming tests, others taking their initial instructions. On another trip, star study with a telescope was the program.

In the program which will celebrate the presentation of the District Council Charter April 13, at the high school, this troop will have quite an important part. Scout Glen Cunningham of this troop has recently completed his merit badge test for craftsmanship in wood.

GLENDALE PRESS GETS RESULTS

Talk about returns! A. J Lucas of 209 South Brand boulevard inserted a little classified advertisement in the Glendale Press one day last week. He was offering an acre and a quarter fruit ranch. To this little ad he received 18 answers, which means that the Glendale Press classified columns are without doubt the best real estate advertisement medium in this section of the country. The answers to this ad came from points as far away as Santa Barbara, Pomona, etc.

Endorsement of Exposition Withheld by Credit Association

One of the principal subjects of discussion at the meeting of the Glendale Credit association held at noon today in the chamber of commerce auditorium was the matter of who should be permitted to put on the proposed merchants' exposition in this city.

Secretary Rhoades of the chamber of commerce recommended that the La Breque Exposition company's proposition receive the endorsement of the association. This recommendation created considerable discussion, which resulted in those present voting to hold up a decision in this matter until the proposition could be investigated further.

It was the concensus of opinion that this was the proper procedure, as it was not the desire of the organization to contract for anything that is not thoroughly understood.

SUBURBAN DAY PROGRAM IS ANNOUNCED

After Inter-City Meeting in L. A. Committees Will Come Here

Announcement of the program for next Saturday, Glendale's big day at the Los Angeles city club, was made today by C. D. Gulick, transportation manager for the city of Glendale who is also a member of the committee arranging the program. The Inter-city and Suburban committees meet once each month a the Los Angeles City club. Each community is allotted a day and provides the entertainment for that entire day. The meeting Saturday has been dedicated to Glendale. Mr. Gulick is inviting all Glendalians to attend both the noon and evening meetings scheduled for Saturday. The first meeting will be at the Los Angeles city club at 12 o'clock noon. A luncheon will be served there for which a nominal charge will be made.

After the luncheon an excellent program of addresses and music has been arranged. Prof. Carol Aronovici, of the University of California, will talk on "City Planning." County School Superintendent Mark Keppie will talk on the subject, "The Advantages of the Various Suburban Cities Maintaining Their Identities as Units." C. D. Gulick will talk on the transportation question and what Glendale is doing in the way of establishing a municipally owned bus line to solve the problem.

The meeting in Los Angeles will be concluded at 2:30 p. m., and all the representatives from the various cities will meet at the auto park on Olive street near Ninth. A line of automobiles will be formed at this park and the delegations from the various suburban cities represented at the meeting will be brought to Glendale over the proposed route of the municipal stage line.

When the party arrives in Glendale the drive will be continued through this city and over the foothills road ending in Verdugo Woodlands where a free barbecue dinner will be served to all from 5 p. m. until 6 o'clock. After the dinner the delegation will go to the high school auditorium where a meeting has been arranged for.

There will be a musical program at this meeting arranged by several famous musicians who are living in Glendale at present. W. D. Platt, present secretary of the California Motor Carriers Association will talk on transportation and motor buses. Mr. Platt is one of the best informed men on the motor transportation situation in the state as he has been in touch with the motor bus and stage development in California since its inception.

W. R. Mitchell, of Los Angeles, will talk at the meeting on one of the subjects that is uppermost in the mind of the citizens of all suburban communities at present. This is the sewage question. Mr. Mitchell states that he will attempt to arrange to give his address in Los Angeles to be transmitted to the meeting in Glendale over the radio telephone. In the event that this arrangement cannot be made Mr. Mitchell will appear in person.

Mr. Gulick, the chamber of commerce and the city officials urge that every one that can attend all of the meetings on Glendale day if possible and if it is impossible to attend the one in Los Angeles to attend the barbecue and mass meeting at the high school.

The barbecue is to be free but it is requested that all who intend attending the dinner phone their reservations in to Glendale 1300 not later than noon Saturday.

BANDITS GET $15,000

DES MOINES, Iowa, April 3.—Two masked gunmen burglarized the Mandelbaum department store here early today and escaped with $15,000 in cash, bonds and valuable merchandise.

BASIS OF RECOGNITION OF RUSSIA

Lloyd George Indicates Conditions That Must Be Met

MUST GIVE PLEDGES

Honoring of Obligations Is Prime Requisite He Declares

LONDON, April 3.—Conditions under which the allies might recognize soviet Russia were indicated by Premier Lloyd George in commons today:

1—Russia must reduce her armies.

2—She must give guarantees not to attack her neighbors.

3—The soviet government must honor all Russian obligations.

LONDON, April 3.—Premier Lloyd George this afternoon asked the house of commons for a vote of confidence in his government.

In a stirring speech before a crowded house, the British prime minister put his leadership to the test. He defended the coalition government's foreign policy and asked the approval of parliament of the Genoa economic conference.

Lloyd George met squarely the crisis confronting his government. He was faced from the opposition benches by leaders of three independent groups of political enemies, each ready with an amendment to his resolution:

"Resolved, that this house approve the resolutions passed by the supreme council at Cannes as a basis for the Genoa conference and will support his majesty's government in endeavoring to effect them."

The prime minister stood ready to resign if an amendment were passed.

"The Genoa conference was called to consider the reconstruction of economic Europe," Lloyd George declared, opening his speech late this afternoon, "and to examine the best method of restoring prosperity out of desolation."

He thereupon moved his resolution, asking parliament's confidence in the proposed policies.

SPANISH WAR VETS CALLED TO CAMP AT MONTEREY

Department Commanders Will Attend Great Rally of Men of '98

The council of administration of the department of California United Spanish War Veterans has fixed Monterey, Calif., as the place for the 1922 annual encampment of the organization, May 15-17, and the following department officers of this county will attend the convention: Department Commander R. Morgan Galbreth, Junior Vice Department Commander Tom C. Galbraith, Chief of Staff Frank W. Inns, Department Adjutant B. H. Upham, Department Quartermaster Ernest Hills, Department Patriotic Instructor Samuel M. Kerns, Department Marshal Geo. E. Hedges and Chief Musician C. E. Williams. They will be joined by large delegations from Roosevelt and Glass camps of Los Angeles, McKinley camp of Long Beach, Glendale camp of Glendale, Hawkens camp of the Soldiers' Home, Ensign Bagley camp of Pasadena, Eddie Moore camp of Alhambra, Schreiber camp of Pomona and J. Franklin Bell camp of San Pedro. Owing to the holding of the national convention in Los Angeles in August, 1922, and the interest created in the organization by this big event it is predicted that the 1922 annual convention of this department at Monterey will be the largest in the history of the U. S. W. V. in California.

The Next Exposition

The binding together of self interest without selfishness with community interest is one of the salient characteristics in the upbuilding of the southwest which differentiates it strikingly from all other sections of the country.

The same differential demonstrates the values that lie in co-operation of business men in the purpose of community service for the retention of the current funds of citizens in the community, meaning the stopping all leaks from the community funds to the channels of trade of another community, or to an out of town interest. It is as great a service in community economy as the efficient administration of a city.

Every dollar is taught to remain at home and is put to work in the southwest on the tax roll. It lightens the weight upon the entire community.

This thought is in the minds of the business men of Glendale today, possibly not in so concrete form, in connection with consideration of a merchants' exposition here this spring, similar to that given last year by the Pacific Coast Exposition Company, under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce.

That show demonstrated to the merchants of the city that they could work together and that the community, which is after all the master, would approve and foster their efforts.

For the great public of Glendale and of all the country back of Glendale attended the show in thousands. Merchants made new patrons and obtained knowledge of merchandise marketable here.

The profits from the show more than paid the individual costs and left each merchant satisfied, possessed of a host of new patrons to be served in the coming months.

The exposition developed a unity of purpose and a harmony of intent between the consuming community and its business elements that gave intense satisfaction which was not decreased at the time by the personal satisfaction of the promoters with the cash result of their labor, amounting, we are creditably informed, to $4000. This sum represents the profit to them for their work as an intermediary unit, introducing the business to the community elements of the city.

Laying aside the value of the work of any intermediaries, pioneering last year in the upbuilding of Glendale, consideration of another such exposition based upon the success of the first, includes speculation of the possibilities of elimination of all such factors in the future, in accordance with the tendency throughout the southwest.

For illustration, had the business men co-operatively organized the show last year they would have avoided payment of $4000 to the promoters and secured that amount for the purposes of city publicity in another form.

There are any number of good, profitable publicity projects presented from time to time to the thoughtful citizens of Glendale. All involve thousands of dollars in cash outlay.

The four thousand paid to the promoters in the passing of the citizens who boosted the show to a success would have financed any one of these and the city would now have been enriched by the results as a consequence.

In the consideration, therefore, of a second show, this item of profits of the first exposition is worthy of attention.

It is one of the leaks of the community funds to outside sources. If it were stopped and the profits of the exposition invested for the benefit of the city's growth, the next show would be a completely rounded out community affair, every dollar working in and for the community, for the community benefit.

The transfer of cash in the process of the show would be merely incidental, since it all would stay in the city.

The channels of trade would run a little higher in its fluid purchasing current without the community at large being four cents or four thousand dollars less well off permanently.

Four thousand dollars is not a great sum.

It was well spent last year for the pioneer work of the promoters.

The experience bought and paid for is of the utmost value now.

It should guide Glendale in the staging of the next show. It should give assurance where there was doubt a year ago.

If the new show goes before the community as Glendale's own with the slogan that the profits go toward boosting the virtues of Glendale for the benefit of all of it—the response of last year will be increased more than one hundred per cent.

The fact that it is Glendale's own exposition would enlist the volunteer aid of all of the city and the back country which is vitally interested in the boosting of this city.

As the representative organization of the city, the profits made by the second show could be placed in the hands of the publicity committee of the Chamber of Commerce to be spent in advancing the interests of the city in a graphic way.

For instance, there is a great need for a descriptive booklet of Glendale. The $4000 earned last year by the promoters could this year be turned into a booklet which the city would be proud to distribute. Sent throughout the United States and distributed at railroad stations, it would turn many tourists toward the city.

Again, the roads in all directions could be signed for Glendale and thousands of dollars headed toward the city.

There is no element of depreciation of the value of the pioneer services of the Pacific Coast Exposition Company last year nor regret for the profits it took out of the city.

Glendale, it is conceded, simply took a lesson in exposition promoting from expert specialists and paid for its tuition.

It learned the lesson well and the Glendale Press is confident that the intelligence of the city is able to apply the lesson in the staging of the next show to the end that this time everyone will attend Glendale's own exposition, motivated by the thought that its success is personal to everyone living in the Verdugo hills.

STRENGTH OF STRIKE IS TESTED

Miners Are 100 Per Cent Out According to Leaders

REPORT IS DENIED

Lewis Suggests Nationalization as Way Out of Coal Dilemma

The real strength of the nation-wide coal tieup was being determined today. John L. Lewis, head of the United Mine Workers, declared in Washington the walkout was 100 per cent effective.

Operators, however, said that many miners simply took a holiday over Saturday and Sunday and were returning to work today.

Lewis, before the house labor committee, suggested nationalization of the mines as the way out of repeated coal troubles. He emphasized miners were ready to meet operators.

In the Pennsylvania anthracite coal districts railroad shops were closed because of the strike and a total of 3000 men laid off. Anthracite operators and miners resumed wage negotiations in New York.

In Chicago, heads of railroad unions discussed aiding the miners.

LEWIS BEFORE CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Nationalization of the country's coal mines was "seriously suggested" to congress today by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, appearing before the house labor committee, which is seeking a solution of the present strike.

Nationalization, Lewis told the committee, is the inevitable remedy for the ills of the coal situation which, he said, the operators have refused to remedy.

"The mine workers," said Lewis, "have been waiting with ever-growing impatience for many years, hoping to be able to detect some signs that the operators were awakening to a realization of their duties. But so far nothing has been accomplished.

"And so it is that the mine workers say that there now seems to be no hope except through nationalization. No remedy has been offered by the operators and in default of any other remedy the mine workers seriously suggest that the government take over and operate the mines."

He said the miners are ready to meet the operators at any time to negotiate a new wage and working agreement and thus end the coal strike. Lewis said the miners would welcome an impartial and judicial investigation that would reveal the facts regarding the coal business—profits, operating practices and industrial relations. An investigating body created by congress should "be free from political equations and the mine workers should be given adequate representation thereon," he said.

RAIL UNIONS PLAN AID

CHICAGO, April 3.—Railroad unions planned aid for the striking coal miners today.

E. J. Manion, head of the Order of Railroad Telegraphers, was in Chicago to determine the attitude of other railroad union chiefs.

Manion said he favored a plan whereby the coal miners would at least be given financial support of rail workers. Manion in his stand is backed by E. H. Fitzgerald, president of the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks.

UNION LABEL LEAGUE REPEATS

April Fool Carnival to Be Staged Again Tonight

The general public is to be given opportunity to enjoy the April Fool Carnival which is being given tonight by Union Label League No. 400 of this city at the K. of P. hall at 8:30 o'clock.

It has been arranged as a celebration of the first birthday anniversary of the league which was organized a year ago with a chater membership of 14 and now has an enrollment approximating 60.

It is a purely social function for the pleasure of members and their friends and the evening will be devoted to informal dancing for the most part but there will be a brief program which will include fancy dancing by Mildred Thompson, piano selections by Mr. Wolf, and other musical numbers by Mrs. Hill and daughters.

The refreshments will include a huge birthday cake decorated in the league colors of purple and white.

Flappers Flip Out of Marriage License Bar

ALAMEDA, Cal., April 3.—Flappers may take the lead when it comes to jazzing around, flirtation, dancing, etc., but when it comes to walking up to the marriage license bureau with a prospective husband, they simply aren't there.

That's the mature opinion of Stuart Gemmel, veteran marriage license clerk of Alameda county. Incidentally, Gemmel is the only marriage license clerk on record who hasn't the handle of "Cupid."

"Flappers," says Gemmel, "are not getting married. They may dazzle the youth when spring floods the veins, but when serious, deep-thinking June comes along the the male of the species decides to take a bride—well, the ground-gripper wins.

"By a ground-gripper I mean just the opposite of a flapper. She is serious about her clothes and her mind, but she's a regular fellow, nevertheless.

"I have been leaning over this counter many years now, and I am here to state that few flappers come into this office.

"The ground-grippers win the husbands, and there's no use denying it. Of the 300 girls who came into my office last month, less than 5 per cent were flappers. Most of the girls came direct from work, and wouldn't know how to flap if they wanted to.

'The flapper is losing out on the big thing that counts in life—love. and marriage."

VACANT WHEEL CHAIR WANTED FOR VETERAN

Disabled Soldier Yearns to Take the Fresh Air and Asks Help

Wanted—One Wheel Chair.

Has any one in Glendale a wheel chair that isn't working? There is a disabled veteran in Glendale who is very desirous of getting out into the fresh air and getting a little of God's life-giving sunshine. The former soldier boy is very ill and his condition is such as to make it almost impossible for him to walk, so that as things now are he is kept in the house most of the time. The faithful little wife of this soldier boy is perfectly willing to furnish the locomotion for this chair if someone will provide the conveyance. This soldier boy's name is Wiley Johnson and he lives at 360 West Colorado. The chair can be left at this address or a telephone call to Glen. 96, 97 or 98 will bring the Glendale Press car right to your door.

So, people of Glendale, put your thinking cap on. Maybe you have a wheel chair up in the attic or out in the garage that you probably will never use again. There was never an opportunity such as this to put that chair to good use.

LOCAL SHRINERS SET CONVENTION HEADQUARTERS

Those Planning Attendance at San Francisco Are Called

Word has been received in Glendale by officials of the Shrine club of Glendale that room reservation for delegates from this city to the Shrine convention in San Francisco in June has been secured at the Hotel St. Marks in Oakland. The Glendale allotment consists of 24 rooms with baths, to accommodate two people each; eight suites with baths, to accommodate four people each, and 24 rooms without baths to accommodate two people eich. The hotel to be headquarters for the Glendale delegates is located on the Key route to San Francisco and is 25 minutes from Market street.

Members of the Glendale Shrine club who are planning to attend the convention should make their reservations for rooms at once, as C. E. Neale, president of the local club, must notify the room committee as to the accommodations desired by the Glendale delegation. Mr. Neals says that all members who cannot make their reservations in person can do so by phoning to him at the Neale & Gregg hardware store.

NEAR EAST CALLS IN CHURCHES

Workers Address Congregations and Sunday Schools in Drive

ARMENIANS IN NEED

Plans Receive Support Throughout Religious Circles of the City

Speaking yesterday at nearly every church and Sunday school in the interests of Near East relief, the Misses Irene Eldred, Elise Truran and Evelyn Trostle, returned relief workers, and Messrs. F. L. Sims, C. H. Emmons and C. V. LaFontaine, brought vividly home to Glendale the need of the organization for cash with which to purchase foodstuffs and donations of used clothing to carry on the salvaging of human beings, especially children in Armenia and other Asia Minor countries.

F. L. Sims, executive secretary of the Southern California committee of Near East relief, in an address at the First Methodist church said in part:

"When the Turks were driven last year from Armenia they stripped the country of not only the food, but of clothing. A quarter of a million people, including tens of thousands of children and refugees from central Turkey and from the central Russia famine region, in the sealed-up cities of trans-caucasia alone, are but a week from starvation and they are literally dependent upon America for life. More than 50,000 children will have to be turned away from American rescue stations unless additional funds come in at once."

Generous contributions resulted from yesterday's appeal at churches and Sunday schools, according to R. W. Mottern, campaign director. Cash gifts with which to purchase foodstuffs for forwarding on the steamer Pennsylvania late this month are being received by E. E. Osgood, treasurer N. E. R., First National bank.

Thursday is "bundle day" for Near East needy. Appeals for used clothing and shipping tags carrying complete instructions for wrapping and delivery to school buildings, which are bundle stations next Thursday, are being dis-

SHRINE CLUB TO GIVE BIG STAG

Big Things Are Scheduled for the Event of the Season

Big things are scheduled for Wednesday night. On that particular date the members of the Shrine club will hold their monthly stag party. One of the members of the entertainment committee stated this morning that a program of unusual "class" has been prepared for this event. According to C. E. Neale, president of the club, there will be everything in the way of "smokes" but nothing stronger. In the preparation of the program for the evening Mr. Neale rendered considerable aid.

There are 187 members in this club, which is open to any resident or visiting Shriner.

THE ARK COMES TO HARM

By JOHN BARTON

(Copyright, 1921, by Associated Newspapers)

"My whiskers!" Dr. Muskrat exclaimed. "Mister Noah was a smarter man than I took him for. (That's just because my folks weren't on his ark, so we never really knew him.) If Fluke-slasher the Whale didn't find the anchor trailing in the water the way the raven told him it was he'd never believe another word from the lying flapwing. I tell you, brains count." And the woodsfolk all nodded; they agreed with him.

"Brains do count," said the red dog who was telling this tale. Brains do count—but so does luck. And luck was against Mr. Noah. His son, Ham, woke up the elephant, and brought him on deck to haul in the anchor chain. But ——" He paused to wag a sad ear.

"The night was cold. Everything was covered with a fine white frost. And the elephant came from where it always warm, so his feet weren't made for skating. He slipped and slid on the icy planks; he sat right down, and Ham had to spread him a carpet of hay before he could stagger up again.

"The chain was cold, too. So very cold it made the finger on the end of his trunk all numb! Of course, he couldn't see what he was doing; he just had to feel. And when he couldn't feel—well he had the anchor almost up by that time. R-r-rip! It slipped out of his grasp. Snap! There went the chain. It broke with a jerk that set the whole ark to rocking and slid the elephant spang thru the side of Mr. Noah's own cabin. Plop! went the anchor to the bottom of the Floor, where they couldn't possibly get it again.

"The poor elephant began to sob and sniffle through his long tooty nose like a heartbroken foghorn. Ham howled: 'Hit's conjur wuk o' dat voo-doo bird! I done tole you we's in for trouble ontwel she git huh neck wrung." (He thought the raven's wife, looked up in her cage, had something to do with it.)

"But Mr. Noah knew better than that. 'Have sense, Ham,' said he. 'How could she do it? No. It's just our luck. I've seen it written in the stars a long time back that we'd come to harm before we came to land, and only an ill-wisher can rescue us. She'll have to conjure mighty strong if she's the ill-wisher they meant.'

"He slipped and slid on the icy planks; he sat right down."

"Before the words were out of his mouth he knew she wasn't. For Fluke-slasher the Whale shot up from the very spot where their anchor had gone down. 'I've found it!' he roared. 'I've found the hook you thought I'd gulp into my gullet like a foolish fish.' (For that's what the raven told him it was.) He gave them a squirm of contempt and flounced off to think what he was going to do about it."

SINLESS SAVIOR TEXT OF DR. FUNK

"The Sinless Saviour" was the subject discussed by Dr. Funk at the First Lutheran church at the morning service on Passion Sunday.

"There are those who have sought to reflect on the character of our Lord. They have said that His father was unknown; but we observe that He had no difficulty in recognizing his own Father. But the number who would belittle the character and influence of Jesus Christ is so small that there is really no occasion for taking a serious account of them. The common verdict, not only of the great mass of mankind, but also of the most discerning legal minds, is in harmony with that of the Roman procurator who, having examined Him declared, "I find no fault in Him."

Napoleon said of Him, "Everything in Him astonishes me. His spirit overawes me, and His will confounds me. Between Him and whoever else in the world there is no possible term of comparison." He taught His disciples to pray, confessing their sins, but He never asks for pardon for himself. He was guiltless, undefiled, unimpeachable, the Holy One of God.

Yes, He was perfect; that is why the precious blood of Jesus Christ is able to cleanse us from all sin. I am sorry to say that we have some wishy-washy Christians who seem to think that it makes no difference whether you pray in the name of Christ or not. I think it does matter. And let me tell you something more: I do not believe in this pernicious doctrine of the Fatherhood of God and brotherhood of man that some of these people talk about. I sounds good, but it isn't true. In our lesson Jesus declares: "I speak that which I have seen with my Father; and ye do that which ye have seen with your father." Here it is evident that theoir fathers were not one and the same person. Again Christ himself denies this teaching when he said: "Ye are of your father the devil, and the lusts of your father ye will do. He was a murderer from the beginning, and abode not in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own: for he is a liar, and the father of it."

Now I know that a few people are shocked at the way your pastor puts things sometimes. They say he talks too plain. What is the matter with these folks who are so astounded? Well, I'll tell you. They mean well; but the trouble is, that they have been patted on the back so long, and told what nice people they are, till they are all puffed up about themselves; and when somebody does come along and tell the unvarinshed God's truth, it staggers them; they are shocked. The Lord have mercy on their poor souls, what they need is another jolt. No, you must be born again before you can pray, "Our Father who art in heaven."

When a man tells his wife that she is the dearest woman on earth she generally grasps his true meaning.

If you have no confidence in people in general they will return the compliment, all right.

RIALTO MEETING WITH FAVOR

If the people of Glendale realized just what unusually excellent spoken plays were being provided at the tent theatre, Harvard and Orange streets, nightly, it is a certainty there would not be a vacant seat at any of the performances.

To those who are not familiar with the possibilities of a tent theatre, a most agreeable surprise is in store, but greater yet is the impression that will be made by the plays, the music and the between-acts vaudeville.

The first performance of "Peg O' My Heart" was given last evening. Miss Audra Alden, who appears in the title role, has been a featured star in this play throughout the United States, and last night's performance gave ample reason for this.

This young actress is a beautiful reader, has tremendous personality and is as dainty as a bit of Dresden china. That she is wedded to her art is shown by her every move and word, while she is supported by a cast of players who would do credit to any metropolitan production.

Mr. Donald Stuart as "Alaric" has the most difficult of the male roles, and acquits himself admirably. As "Sir Gerald" Mr. Millais is effective, and has greater scope than has bben provided him heretofore. The other members of the cast well deserve personal mention, but limited space and the absence of programs accounts for the omission.

"Peg" is the offering tonight also, when special admission inducements will obtain for the ladies, with a decided reduction in the charge made for the reserved seats.

COST OF UNEMPLOYMENT

Expenditure on the relief of unemployment in Great Britain has reached the rate of 100,000,000 pounds per annum.

A Year Ago Today

(From the Glendale Daily Press, April 3, 1921)

Plans are being perfected for a grammar school track meet to be held on April 11 and 13. The meet will be for grammar school pupils under the sixth grade and will be held at the Intermediate school. The following schools have entered teams: Pacific, Central avenue, Colorado, Doran and Columbus. Cerritos is expected to enter a team but has not done so to date.

Announcement is made that on June 28 an election will be held in this city to replace the officials who will go out of office when the city charter becomes effective. At that time it will become necessary to elect a city council composed of five members, a board of education composed of five members, a city clerk and city treasurer.

An interesting program was provided at the Broadway school by P. T. A. in honor of father's night.

S. P. ORDERS AUTO CARS FOR LINES

The Southern Pacific company has asked for bids on the construction of 2000 single-sheathed, steel superstructure, automobile cars of 50 tons capacity, to be used on its Pacific system, according to an announcement today by Geo. McCormick, general superintendent of motive power for the railroad.

These cars will be the most modern type of automobile cars, will be equipped with double swing end doors and staggered side doors having ten feet clear opening.

According to McCormick the Southern Pacific now has 2107 automobile cars in use on its Pacific system and the new order will be the largest ever placed by a western railroad for this class of equipment.

JEFFRIES INVITED TO REVIVAL ARENA

Dr. Dunlop, Evangelist, Asks Him to Enter Burbank Ring

Dr. H. P. Dunlop, evangelist of Chicago, who is holding a revival at the Presbyterian church in Burbank, home of Jim Jeffries, has sent out a challenge to the big fighter to split time with him at the revival in a spiritual bout.

"I am an exponent of the old-time religion," says Dr. Dunlop, "and I do not take any stock in these 'new departure' would-be Bible teachers and evangelists. I have been in the spiritual ring over ten years steady and I know what the old-time gospel is doing.

I teach the deity of Christ, the power of the blood to cleanse from all sin. I believe in conviction, repentance, restitution and 'praying through.' I believe in knowing you are saved for a religion you can get without knowing it is one you can loose without knowing it.

"There are a lot of would-be preachers and evangelists like Jeffries who think you have to compromise with the world, its weaknesses and desires in order to get the crowds. But I never trim my sails to suit public opinion, but come down hard with a 'Thus saith the Lord,' and you should see them take to cover and cry out: 'God be merciful to me, a sinner.'

Think of it—a man calling himself a minister, saying: 'It is all right, boys, to hit the booze'; and 'Wear 'em short, dance and smoke if you want to, ladies, and it will be all right with God.''

REV. KEITH BROOKS TALKS TO GOOD CLASS

Rev. Keith L. Brooks' talk to the Men's Bible class at the city hall, Sunday at 9:30 a. m. was enjoyed by those present.

A male quartet from the Methodist church, consisting of Dr. Lusby, Dr. Lucas, Paul Butterfield and Frank Butterfield, favored the class with some special selections.

Rev. Brooks spoke in part as follows:

One thing has been brought out very clearly in our studies of Matthew's Gospel, and that is that Jesus Christ was very practical in His teaching. He could have revealed great mysteries, yet in His preaching He stressed the plain duties of life and laid special emphasis upon those which are most galling to the flesh. We find this 18th chapter full of practical exhortations.

If thy brother shall trespess against thee, go and tell him his fault between thee and him alone. If he shall hear thee, thou hast gained thy brother." No long-cherished feuds would exist in the church if this was obeyed. The word "trespass" implies that the matter is something of a scandalous nature. What attitude shall we take toward the person who has done us such a wrong? Some would say, "Give him the cold shoulder. Let him alone." This might do with unbelievers but this admonition is for fellow Christians—"thy brother," a man who professes to follow Christ. A fellowship is broken, a coldness is introduced among members of the church. It is not well for either party that the matter be ignored or left to rankle in their hearts. The offended one is to seek the offender. In Matt. 5:23, 24 the duty of confession is also laid upon the offender, but if he does not soon retract the matter, we are not to let him alone. We are to tell him his fault first in private. It is not to be blurted out before unbelievers. If the offender is willing to listen we have "gained our brother," not merely personal satisfaction. If one's motive is to cram the offender's words down his throat, it were better to leave the matter alone but if to restore a broken fellowship, then a brother has been gained.

But suppose the offender will not listen. "If he will not hear thee, take with thee one or two more, that in the mouth of two or three witnesses every word may be established" (v. 16). We are to persevere in seeking peace, and united and prayerful reasoning with others may help. Two or more witnesses are suggested. Have you ever felt the need of witnesses when talking with one who had trespassed? He has one story for you and another for someone else when your back is turned. It might be well in some cases to have both witnesses stenographers.

Perhaps even then the man will not listen. What then? "Tell it unto the church." Invite the prayers of the whole assembly. Give him the combined judgment of the whole brotherhood, and if he still persists in the way that he has been shown to be wrong, verse 17 says we are to "let him be unto us as a heathen man." What does that mean? Shall we hate him and snub him? Do we have unkind feelings toward the heathen? No, we seek their salvation. We pray for them. A man who has this long persisted in what he knows is wrong, has shown that he is devoid of the Spirit. We can only regard him as the rest of the unbelieving world, a man who needs converting and praying for.

"Then came Peter and said, Lord, how oft shall my brother sin against me and I forgive him? Till seven times? Jesus saith unto him, I say not unto thee, until seven times, but, until seventy times seven." The Rabbinical rule was to forgive three times. Peter thought himself very liberal. The number "seventy seven," suggests the perfection of perfection. The Christian is to be willing to forgive any number of times. This is a practical matter, for some of us are very mindful of small grievances.

Jesus then enforces His words with an illustration taken from current events. He tells of a king who was taking account of his servants. One man owed him ten thousand talents, and since the man could not pay, the king commanded that he be sold with all that he had to make payment. This servant plead with the king to have patience with him and promised to pay all, whereupon he was freely forgiven the whole debt. But immediately this man turned around and laid hands on one who owed him two hundred pence, and would have killed him if he did not pay all. The debtor plead for release to no avail. When the matter was reported to the king the wicked servant was again placed under arrest and his own debts were piled back upon him.

It will be noticed that the wicked servant, in pleading with the king, did not ask the remission of his debt but only for time that he might himself pay it, well as he knew the hopeless character of his debt. This is not the language of a penitent at the throne of grace receiving salvation. We have no offers to make. Any future righteousness of ours has no power to affect the guilt of past sin. It was not genuine repentance. His subsequent conduct certainly would not become a truly saved man though he be a part of professing Christendom.

He seemed to have no sense of having received anything himself. His one thought was to hail the other fellow, to take him by the throat and choke off his wind if he did not pay the two hundred pence. He heard the very prayer addressed to himself that he had earlier addresses to the king. Everything was ready for him to give the same answer that he had received. There are many like him today, even church members, who press their little claims with unsparing severity and forget the debts that have been forgiven them.

No wonder that when the fellow-servans observed his ungrateful manner they reported it. Where much has been forgiven much is expected. No wonder the king was wroth and delivered the man to the tormentors. To forgive others should be the delight of truly saved people. Even Christians may incur God's wrath because of a cold, unmerciful spirit. Such a spirit long fostered, may cause God's pardon of them to cease to operate. They may lose the consciousness of the removal of their debts and be left in torment of conscience until matters have been made right.

Central Avenue "Colored Folks"

The "colored folks" ladies' aid of Central Avenue Methodist church will give an entertainment in the social hall of the church Tuesday evening, April 4. They will be ably assisted by some of the "colored" gentlemen of the church.

The program will consist of southern plantation songs and readings and refreshments of fried chicken will be served, but don't ask the "colored" folks where they got the chicken.

The names of some of the entertainers are as follows: Mahalia Jogalong, Rachel Rollinpie, Rosanna Hoppergrass, Evalina Tallorfut, Rastis oJhnson, Brother Abraham, Sister Luce, Mirandy Easterbrook, Booker T. Washington, Deacon Adsalom, Parson Jinglejaw, Mindy Jackson, Sallie Green, Dinah Cross, Sis Hopkins, Sadie Johnson, Mandy White and Hannah Snowball.

A silver offering will be taken at the close of the program.

AUTOMATIC LIFE IS MR. EDMONDS' THEME

Presbyterian Divine's Sermon Relates to Ordination of Deacons

The Sunday morning sermon in the Presbyterian church by the pastor, Rev. W. E. Edmonds, was especially related to the ordination and installation of newly-elected members of the board of deacons. A resume follows:

"he prophet Zechariah was shown in a vision a great gold lampstand which bore seven lamps. How were they kept burning? How was oil supplied? By no mechanism nor by human hands, but automatically, from two living olive trees on either side, the precious oil flowed through golden pipes to each lamp. The oil never fails, the light never wanes. Night and day the olive trees pour the vital supply. The prophet was told this represented the inflow of the enabling spirit of God.

The lesson: It is only as the believer derives his spirit directly from Christ that his light burns; his life is to be a supernatural one. And so God has always been putting before His people superhuman duties, duties beyond all natural strength, that men everywhere might see that it is not by human power. God has been setting before us hard, impossible things. Where the philosopher falls down is, he can't explain that which is beyond the natural—he can't explain Moses' burning bush, from which God spoke. The modernists would have us believe the pillar of cloud and fire that led Isael was just a little incident of nature; the walls of Jericho fell down by some small natural cause; and so of the sun standing still for Joshua. But God, who made everything, can handle everything. His working cannot be measured by a little human yardstick. This spirit of demanding to see and understand before believing exists everywhere today. Where would Christ's church be today if it had always waited to see before it acted? No, we are to believe because God says. We believe God's word because it bears His stamp as a supernatural revelation. The only safe place we have to stand on is the supernatural God and the supernatural book.

"And we are members of a supernatural church, redeemed by Christ who died for it; and we have got to be true to it. The success of a church does not depend upon brains in the pulpit. Is grace in the human heart a product of evolution? It is the work of the grace of God, the new birth. It is time we look where we are going, in this evolution. Now, it is because these false things are rampant in the world that we must have for office bearers these men who stand four-square on the supernatural word. These days, most of the great schools are schools of unbelief,—they have no place for the truth of the Bible of for Christ's atonement. You ought to know where you are sending your children; first thing you know they are left without anything under their feet, ruined. We stand four-square on the supernatural God and book and church.

"The only solution to all is, 'Not by might, nor by power, but by My Spirit, saith the Lord.' The life in Jesus Christ is an automatic life; its secret of success is in keeping in touch with the source. We see, when the workmen leave their work on the building, growth stops. But not so the tree,—it goes on. Thus grace goes on. Let us be like the tree; there is no noise about it, but it grows and fruits, and every one knows the fruit when they see it.

Oh! to be like that lampstand in the holy place, having the automatic relation of divine supply! Look well to the connection. If the pipe breaks, the light goes out."

OBSERVATIONS

By the Oldest Inhabitant

My latest observation is that Old Man Flu can give even a hard-boiled newspaper man a pretty hard tussle and that he is mighty reluctant to let go. My doctor quoted the Irishman's saying that when you have the flu you don't get over it till six weeks after you are well. And he was about right.

Judging from the appearance of the sidewalk along the south side of the high school grounds after every rain this past winter there will not be much of the campus left by the time the new plant is ready to occupy. So much dirt washes down after every rain that the walk is almost impassable and unsightly canyons appear in the grounds. Some kind of a drain ought to be provided that would allow the water to escape without carrying away so much earth with it.

Our new directory is a real nice book at a nice, big price, but there is one serious objection to its make-up from the viewpoint of an old resident. It hasn't the names of the people in it, that is, hardly more than a fourth of them. To my notion a directory ought to contain the names of all the members of the family instead of leaving out the most important ones, those of the children.

It passes my comprehension how as intelligent a people as the earlier residents of California ever allowed to be foisted on them so cumbersome, tedious and expensive a system of transferring property as the one that now afflicts us. In many eastern states a piece of real estate can be transferred in a few minutes and at an expense of only a dollar or two. When I lived in Illinois I bought and sold property more than once, when the cost to the seller was the expense of bringing his abstract of title down to date at a cost of 50 cents to $1, and to the buyer the fee for recording the deed, 75 cents. And the whole transaction took an hour or two. In California it costs the seller from $20 to $50 and the buyer from $10 up; and it takes from three to five weeks to get the transfer through, too. Another adverse feature, too, is that if at any time a title company goes out of business its certificates are worth absolutely nothing, and if you make a transfer of the property subsequently, you must pay from $25 to $50 to some other title company for a new certificate. It would seem that every property owner would welcome the advent of the Torrens system, under which a transfer can be made in an hour or two, and at a cost to the seller of a dollar for a certificate of title, guaranteed by the state, and to the buyer of the fee for recording the deed. The iniquitous "new owner fee" of $5 is wiped out entirely. But this new system, with its many advantages, is very slow of adoption, probably because the title companies naturally fight it hard. But as it means the saving of billions of dollars a year, it will undoubtedly come into universal use soon.

This writer's bump of self esteem has suffered some very hard blows recently. Time was and not so long ago, when I could name and locate every street in Glendale and tell in most cases whether or no there was any certain number on any certain street. But with the thousands of new homes built in the past two years and the many new streets opened, I am free to confess that I can do so no longer. And think of the changes in street names during the last few years. Sycamore became West Doran, Remington, North Columbus; Walnut, South Orange; Damasco Court and Blanche avenue, South Maryland avenue; Halstead street, Mariposa avenue; Tropico avenue, Los Feliz road; Ninth street, Windsor road; Seventh street, Elk avenue; Sixth street, Colorado street; Fifth street, Harvard street; Fourth street, Broadway; Third street, Wilson avenue; Second street, California avenue; First street, Lexington drive; Bena Way, Hillside drive, and just recently Sixth street in the Grand View district has become Glenwood road and Vine avenue, Western avenue. More than 20 new streets have been laid out in the last six months and many of them are already paved.

So far as I can learn the Glendale postoffice is giving excellent local service but the antics played by mail to out-of-town people occasionally is amusing and, it must be confessed, somewhat annoying. For instance, I mailed a letter recently, one Thursday forenoon to a party living on rural route 12 out of Los Angeles, fully expecting it to reach its destination by Saturday, at the latest. It took it a little over two weeks to travel the 16 miles between the two points.

The term, "Glendale Heights," now designating an exceedingly popular new subdivision in the eastern part of Glendale, has been applied to two different tracts heretofore. One of them was the beautiful section now known as Verdugo Woodlands or Selvas de Verdugo, the Spanish appellation. The other was a portion of what is now the Grand View section of Glendale, then a part of the county lying between Burbank and Glendale, whose limits were then nearly 2 miles apart. Now they join.

Glendale's street numbering, which, after a strenuous campaign of months' duration a few years ago, during which many different systems were proposed was thought to have been perfected, still has some curious quirks in it. For instance, 145 South Brand is exactly opposite 156, and 245 is opposite 248. Corner houses next to Columbus on Wilson, Salem, California, Myrtle, Lexington, Milford and Doran are numbered respectively: 398, 381, 380, 377, 378, 377 and 376. No. 217 and 212 West Lomita are exactly opposite each other. That part of Kenneth road now in the city has an odd jumble of numbers, owing to the fact that some residents retain the old ones. They run about this way: 727, 1650, 820, 835, 910, 2001, 2129, 2143, 2147, 2150. But perhaps these will all be straightened out in time.

CHRISTIAN CHURCH RELIEF PROGRAM IS AFFECTING

The Near East Relief program at Central Christian church Sunday night was witnessed by a very large audience and was most affecting.

The film, "Alice in Hungerland" depicted to the very letter many of the awful scenes witnessed by the American workers in Asia Minor and showed the awful condition of the Armenian people who were the victims of the terrible Turk.

Miss Evelyn Trostle, who spent 15 months in the orphanage at Marash, province of Cilicia, Asia Minor, and returned to this country a few months ago to assist in raising more funds to meet the desperate needs of that afflicted country, told of her work there. She had charge of more than 400 little orphans who were fed by the supplies sent from America and who will all starve if these supplies are not continued. She also told of the awful massacre of a few weeks ago when the Turks murdered more than 12,000 innocent Christian Armenians.

When 1000 of these persecuted people took refuge in their church building the fiendish Turks set fire to the structure and then shot down all who tried to escape the awful death in the flames.

Miss Trostle told so pitifully the desperate need of the starving people, many of whom have to be turned away because there is not enough food to go around, and pleaded most earnestly for additional money and supplies to be sent as soon as possible.

She said that Americans were fairly idolized by the Armenians and are the only people who are respected by the Turks. When the French garrison stationed in Marash to protect the people from the atrocities of the Turks was withdrawn the ten Americans left in the place secured from the Turks a promise of protection to all orphanages under the American flag. Miss Trostle said it is just such incidents as this that make her proud of her American citizenship. Many pledges of monthly payments were secured and considerable cash.

REV. CRIST SPEAKS ON LIFE'S SCHOOL

Rev. C. M. Crist, pastor of the Fist Methodist church, delivered a splendid sermon on "What School Do I Attend?" Sunday morning. He said in part:

"We should be thankful that we do not have to be ushered into the presence of God without some school time of preparation. With Paul, we must be tutored in the school of Christ. If we could think of life as we should we wolud no longer seek after the things that now take our attention, and seek everlasting life. So many people say, 'We must live, the world owes a living.' We don't have to live. It is for our everlasting benefit that we settle that fact. Some things we must do, some things we have to accumulate, so I have thought of life as a school. I may take the course of the flesh or the course of the spirit.

It is not the place in which one dwells but the spirit that dwells in him that makes him different from others. Only those who recognize that fact and cultivate the fellowship of Christ can succeed in the school of life and develop in the right direction. Heaven is within us and to get to heaven as a place we must have it in our hearts here. It is ours to develop now the things that will stand any test that may be placed upon us.

"The fruits of the Spirit are love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith. Links that would bind the whole world together.

"Love is the first law of the Christian life. God Himself is love. Jesus said 'Thou shalt love' but we cannot love because we are commanded to do so. We must be able to absorb under the instruction of Christ. We need to recognize his divine leading. We will never experience divine love unless the Spirit of Christ comes into our hearts. Everything that should enter into our character must be applied to this life.

"Joy. I suspect that there never was a time when there was so many agencies for the entertainment of man as the present, and yet they are so void of real joy. Real joy comes only with the development of the spiritual side of our nature. The question might arise as to just how much joy one might expect to get out of this life. Seek after it and you will find it, because it is one of the fruits of the Spirit. If we are to win we must have joy.

"Peace. If this world is lacking in joy, it is none the less lacking in peace. What unrest there is in the world, the home, the church, in everything, but peace never will come until it comes through the Prince of Peace. Only insofar as the Prince of Peace is recognized will peace conferences be a success. If these elements are made real in this school-time of the soul, death will be but a graduation, to be at home with God. Then old age will not be the sunset of life but the glorious morning time."

Following the sermon there was a brief but stirring address by F. L. Sims on the Near East.

Truths in Epigram

To appreciate heaven well, 'Tis good for a man to have some fifteen minutes of hell. — Carleton (1845-1912).

To look upon and not down, To look forward and not back, To look out and not in, and To lend a hand.—Hale (1822-1909).

Everyone is bound to bear patiently the results of his own example.—Syrus (42 B. C.).

THE LEGION VIEW

A. Piatt Andrew, who is a member of congress from Massachusetts, says the compensation (bonus) can be paid, and that the treasury would not be ruined by the operation. He has held the positions of assistant secretary of the treasury, director of the mint, and been professor of economics at Harvard. The assumption that he possesses practical knowledge on the subject treated is not rash. The payment would involve large sums. This is a large country. Mr. Andrew ridicules the estimates made by some of the opponents of the measure.

If all the veterans preferred a cash settlement the total, according to the Andrew figures, would be $1,500,000,000 in the course of three years, and after that, nothing. If on the other hand, they choose insurance, the cost at the end of twenty years would be about five billion. These figures are cited in contrast to those of New York bankers, and of a Washington daily that sets the aggregate expense at between fifty billion and seventy-five billion. A paragraph from the Andrew paper may be quoted as revealing the point of view from which he addresses himself to the subject:

"These are indeed formidable sums, but taking the maximum payments for the next three years, of $1,500,000,000, on the assumption of every soldier choosing cash, the total would not amount to half as much per capita for our people as the compensation which Canada paid to her soldiers involved for her population.

"How, you may ask, is this great sum to be paid?

"It should be noted in passing that the suggestion of levying special taxes to meet a special expenditure has never been raised before in connection with the adjustment of compensation for any other war claimants. When the Dent act was passed, which arranged for settling claims of war contractors, no particular revenue measure was provided, although the actual compensation paid under that act amounted to nearly $3,000,000,000. No prejudice was created against these claimants and there was little protest against them, because they were paid out of the general resources of the treasury, and no definite taxes were assigned for their settlement. The same is true of the adjustment of the compensation of the railroads, amounting to $500,000,000 for the losses incurred under war administration. It is true also of the $40,000,000 voted to compensate mine owners for losses incurred merely in getting ready to produce minerals for chemical warfare, but without actually producing them. It is true of the many millions voted for the relief of shipping board contractors."

Following this he argues that payments could be made out of sums saved in army and navy reductions, while money will be coming from England as interest on the war debt. Mr. Andrew at least succeeds in making clear his disbelief in the assertion that by compensating the veterans the country would be plunged into ruin.

CONCERNING CERTAIN PRATTLE

Philip Francis, writing for the yellow press, his output labeled "March of Events," makes the not uncommon error of thinking he is addressing persons who do not know anything. Thus he feels quite at liberty to manufacture his series of events. He sets them performing. He stands them up and knocks them down. It is evident that he first outlines a course of treatment, and then supplies an event to dovetail into his theories.

For example he begins this way: "The narrow escape of the Balfour treaty in the senate scared our new bosses in Loondn * * * We might have an American senate some day instead of a London annex."

Francis does not perpetrate this sort of stuff because he is a fool, for he is a man of wide information and high intelligence. His trouble is that under orders he suppresses the information and diverts the intelligence to improper purposes.

The treaty characterized by him as being Balfour's was devised by representatives of the United States, written by the hand of the American secretary of state. England and the other powers gave it their approval. The American senate did not become a London annex in any sense that British authority did not become an annex to Washington. The treaty did not give one of these powers an advantage over the other. They joined in the common object of making and preserving peace, its benefits mutual.

When events that are not, and never will be, begin to march at the behest of a talented writer long on imagination and short on conscience, it is time for the thoughtful reader to lay the paper down. Surely he has nothing to gain by wading through a morass of misstatement.

UPSETTING PRECEDENT

Recently a writer of charming tales took umbrage at the deportment of a painter of pictures. The days of the duello were too long past to be restored even temporarily, but when the pride of a literary man has received a jar, something is to be done about it. The injured party did not feel competent to beat the block off the artist. Cherishing his grudge he went into training. He took strenuous exercise, not ing practice with the stuffed glove of pugilism. he felt physically fit, he issued a challenge for with fists. The challenge was accepted.

, according to all precedent, the challenger have won handily. It was on the program m to stand triumphant above his fallen foe and the latter to eat offensive words by him uttered, or humbly apologize for whatever the wrong of which he had been guilty. Things did not turn out this way, not at all.

To convey a sense of the truth mildly and in few words, it may be said that the artist just naturally knocked the stuffing out of the author. He received a few scars himself, but he was in a position to say to sympathetic friends "you ought to see the other fellow."

The writer is popular with a wide flock of readers. He delights them habitually with his humor. Possibly he may be able to see the joke in his experience, and weave it into a yarn worth more than enough to pay for an additional course of training; after which he can lick the other chap, perhaps.

REDUCTIO AD ABSURDUM

To reduce to an absurdity is a form of argumentative attack or reprisal. It takes the asseverations of the opposing side, or accepts its theories, only for the purpose of working them out to a logical conclusion, which is likely to be fatal to them. Reduction to an absurdity seldom is a process applied to material things. Certain small men in congress are trying to establish this precedent. They seek to reduce the army and navy to an absurd and useless shadow of what those arms of defense should be.

When the motion was made to lessen the numerical strength of the navy it was with the clear understanding that it was to be kept at a strength greater than that of Japan's and equal to that of Great Britain. Congress undertakes to so cripple and maim the navy that far from excelling Japan's, it will be vastly inferior. Once there was a furor for extending the navy. Competition in building was fierce. This ambition was checked, and the strife for supremacy abated. There was no thought on the part of the public, or of the diplomatists who arranged the new program, that destruction of the navy was contemplated. It was contemplated, however, by a coterie of congressmen. This country does not want a large navy. In the very nature of things it wants and needs as great a navy as any other country maintains.

Similar efforts to destroy the army are to be observed. From the conduct of the leaders in the movement, it seems as though they would be glad to abolish even a skeleton formation. Had they their own way, they would not leave a corporal's guard.

This is not economy. It is folly running riot.

Nobody denies that there have been bad pictures on the screen. The fact must be admitted that some of the film actors and actresses have had their heads turned by notoriety, and an abundance of easy money. Nevertheless the public has scant sympathy with the constant series of attacks on the moving picture industry involving as such attacks must, the good with the undesirable.

After a Colorado man had been forced to sell his lambs at 75 cents apiece, he happened to be in New York. There he ate at a restaurant and was charged 90 cents for one lamb chop. Naturally he wondered if this could have been a fragment of one of his own lambs.

THE THEATER

By DR. FRANK CRANE

"Conceived in Godhead, born beside the altars, slain in the brothel and born again in the soul of man, endlessly repeating in its own person the story of its immortal and rejuvenate god, Dionysus, the theater has lived the whole history of Europe. No word has spanned such range of time and forms and morals. No art has so changed and so remedied the same."

DR. FRANK CRANE

This is a sentence from Kenneth Macgowan's recent volume, "The Theater of Tomorrow."

It is an interesting book, written by one who not only knows the theater as it is, and the theater as it was from the beginning, but has also a rather definite notion of what the theater will be in the future.

He tells us that the history of the theater begins beside Dionysiac altars more than twenty-five centuries ago as a religious ritual.

It began in the open air.

It began as a crude form of that instinct which impels man to believe that he is more than a passing brute and that he is in some way a child of destiny.

It began with neither audience nor actors, only villagers, partaking in mystic ceremonies, praying with their bodies to the high gods for the desire of the soul.

The theater, which is now frowned upon by some circles of religion, was once the heart of religion, as in Athens where forty thousand citizen spectators were jammed into a bowl on the hillside of the Acropolis to watch the dancers and hear the actors tell them over and over the stories of their heroes and their gods.

The drama was reborn in the middle ages and here also its place was first before the high altar in the church.

The miracle plays became too popular and had to be taken out of the church and set up in the open where there was room for all to see.

Gradually the drama was altered with time, and through a long evolution has reached the condition in which it is found today.

It is even now in a further stage of development by means of the moving picture play.

It has always been my conviction that while the theater cannot be successfully made a platform for propaganda, for the simple reason that all art is debased when it finds any other end and excuse except the joy of self-expression, at the same time there is no single instrument so powerful as the drama as a means of cultural development.

And this means not only diversion but the satisfaction of the profoundest needs of the intellectual and emotional life.

Morals are not made nor advanced particularly by didactic teaching. They are the result of suggestion and of inspiration.

The theater of the future will become religious when people have learned that religion is not a side issue of life but is the very essence of life itself and carries with it the secret of life's profoundest and most subtle satisfaction.

THE LISTENING POST

The man in doubt went to the Teacher for advice.

A great many persons through the world seek advice.

And many persons are willing to give it.

Freely, glibly, hastily and with little thought of consequences.

* * *

Advice is of two general kinds.

Good and bad.

All of it is free.

And a great deal of it is bad.

Some of it is good.

* * *

So the man who was in doubt went to the Teacher.

And asked for advice.

He was in trouble.

And he wanted the Teacher to help him.

* * *

And the Teacher was very busy.

Not giving advice.

But seeking to discover the truth.

And to find the courage to tell it.

For he felt that if people knew the truth it was enough.

* * *

And the man told the Teacher he was in doubt and trouble.

And he wanted advice.

Some one had told him to come to the Teacher.

Since he would be able to give the best advice to a man in trouble.

* * *

And the man related his trouble.

And said he wanted a way out of it.

He wanted the Teacher to give him advice in the matter.

And the teacher said:

"You do not want my services. You want those of a lawyer. Or an advocate."

* * *

"Why not yours?" asked the man who was in trouble.

"Because I do not give people advice to help them out of trouble. I tell them the truth that they may avoid trouble. And if they do not heed the truth I tell them to face the trouble."

* * *

And the Teacher took down a little dial.

With a needle on it.

That went about in a circle like the needle of a compass.

And he said to the man in trouble: "Put your finger on the thing that worries you."

For the dial was lettered with various words.

There was fault and injustice and dishonesty and lying and cheating and a lot of things that make trouble.

* * *

So the man who was in trouble put his finger on the word "dishonesty."

And the Teacher said: "Watch the needle."

Which swung about and finally rested on some other words.

* * *

And the Teacher said: "Read them!"

And the man read them thus: "Confess and repay and repent and abhor."

And the man said: "What is that needle?"

And the Teacher said: "That is the needle of Truth and Conscience."

* * *

And the man said: "How does it operate?"

And the Teacher said: "If you will put your finger exactly on the fault that led to your trouble, the needle will tell you exactly how to make amends for the fault and avoid trouble in the future."

* * *

And the man said: "I cannot confess the fault. It would ruin me."

And the Teacher said: "If you do not confess the fault and make amends it will certainly ruin you."

* * *

And then the Teacher said:

"No man needs other advice than that of his own conscience. It tells him unerringly what to do. But men often do not want to face faults and make amends for them. They want to escape the consequences. IN which case they do not want teachers of truth. They want advocates for hire."

* * *

And as the Teacher spoke, a series of words in the whitest light shone on the wall before the man who was in doubt.

And the words were:

"What is the RIGHT thing to do?"

And that faded out and two other words shone forth:

"Do the Right thing!".

And the Teacher dismissed the man and went about his work of discovering the truth and telling it.

SONGS OF THE POETS

Music I Heard—Conrad Aiken (1889——)

Music I heard with you was more than music,
And bread I broke with you was more than bread.
Now that I am without you, all is desolate,
All that was once so beautiful is dead.

Your hands once touched this table and this silver,
And I have seen your fingers hold this glass.
These things do not remember you, beloved:
And yet your touch upon them will not pass.

For it was in my heart you moved among them,
And blessed them with your hands and with your eyes.
And in my heart they will remember always:
They knew you once, O beautiful and wise!

EASTERN POINT OF VIEW

ELOPERS OF THE MIND

[New York Times]

The experts have lately been spending a great deal of time over the ways of testing pupils. Some have discarded the "marks" of the old examinations as fallible evidence of intelligence and power. Some have turned from the practices of the augurs in making use of answers to chance flights of catch questions, and insist upon examining the examiners. Certain newly devised tests disclose the superiority of ordinary freshmen to successful university presidents. This implies a tremendous improvement of the present generation over the past, or else suggests that there has been something wrong in the methods of scrutinizing educational progress.

JUST BETWEEN OURSELVES

By DELLA STEWART

There's a quaint Chinese proverb, potent with the subtle insight of the east, to the effect that one can't clasp hands with one palm. Blessed is the person who can always find another hand to clasp. Little minds are so busied with their own concerns that other hands are as if they did not exist.

It's such a terribly narrow lift that's concerned only with the things of self. In the rush of today for precedence and place, there's a danger that we forget all else. We push and elbow our way through life's bargain sale, too often ignoring the others who are as needy as are we. The business man's slogan, "Success to the strongest;" that of society, "We have our own way to make—our own position to keep up."

And so we grow selfish and unsymmetrical with the crowding and pushing to the first. Sometimes to the very end of life we never know what we have lost by not letting up a little on the pace, by not stepping aside once in a while to enjoy association, companionship, unselfish sharing of advantages and joys. Getting ahead isn't everything, and the top is not desirable if it is only to be reached by continual stepping on the rights and happinesses of others. Its attainment may mean only the very emptiest of joys.

It's better far to find a hand to clasp ours. True companionship makes striving more worth while, and it sweetens the hours of defeat that come to us all. Worth more is one soul on whom we can lean for comfort and in whom we can confide even our most secret longings with perfect surety of being understood, than all the standing alone on the very peak of existence. Don't let's limit our horizon to self.

Now rises one of the most discerning, Professor William C. Bagley of Teachers' college, Columbia university and intimates that, even if we can determine the mediocrity of a child of twelve, the dooming of him to narrow training for routine work only is contrary to the ideal of democracy. Democratic development has been toward elevating the common man to a position "of supreme collective control." It is therefore, now as never before, says Professor Bagley, "a race between education and annihilation." Scientific measurement is essential, but it should not attempt to cast the horoscope of an individual at twelve. According to statistics quoted by Commissioner Grave at the same meeting in Chicago, 47.3 per cent of the white men in the draft were "morons;" that is, while adults in years, they had the mental age of from seven to twelve years. What is needed educationally is such a continued exploring of the possibilities of the common mind as will insure the lifting of the children of twelve to higher levels of thinking and feeling. But this does not mean that we are not to find some way of discerning and an effective way of training for leadership the genius that lives in every nation.

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

They are testing the ability of school children now by certain delicate mechanisms. Through use of these appliances, educators believe they may determine exactly the line of activity for which each of the pupils is fitted.

HENRY JAMES

If a child has a talent for music, if it has a capacity for drawing, for love of color; if it instinctively turns to commercial pursuits, or if latent within it is a genius for invention, lack of information concerning these points would be most regrettable.

But the artistic temperament cannot be suppressed. The future captain of industry early begins to swap jackknives advantageously. The embryo inventor finds time to tinker with tools, or wires, or chemicals.

In other words, the new system has the aspect of a fad. It pretends to make revelation of that which could not by any possibility remain concealed.

In the efforts to devise a better system of popular education there is great opportunity for theories to be tried out. Most of them are of doubtful value. Measuring intelligence by tape is a process that at this stage of procedure, fails to make wide appeal. The conduct and aptitude of boys and girls is rendered clear to observant parents and teachers by the mere process of contact, and the response to efforts to teach the little ones.

When C. L. Hulse of Covina died business in the thriving town was silenced for the day. This singular tribute was paid to a man who for twenty-four years had been a grocery clerk. To such extent had the humble individual made himself respected and beloved.

Doubtless Mr. Hulse was possessed of rare and beautiful qualities. Such possession is in itself a finer success than may be attained by effort.

A man on the street was explaining yesterday that the reason for the prevalence of crime was that the law was not enforced impartially. He cited the case of Tim Murphy of Chicago as an example.

Murphy may be recalled as the crook who was found guilty of conspiracy to rob the mails, and received a short sentence, which he has not served, and that nobody believes he ever will be called upon to serve.

All old stuff, but true.

But what right has a mere public? Ask either side. Both will say that it hasn't any.

Among rumors concerning the Los Angeles police muddle is one setting forth that two gunmen have been brought to the city to put the chief out of the way. As an ex-colonel in the regular army his nerves have had a training that enables them to resist the shock of this report.

The question that arises naturally is as to the necessity for importing gunmen. Los Angeles is not marked by any such paucity of gunmen that anybody has noticed it particularly.

California Indians are in Washington seeking compensation for lands that have been taken from them, and for other adjustments of their relations with the government.

The merits of this particular claim happen to be unknown to the writer. The charges of the Indians have an air of probability. If they have not suffered grievous wrongs they have been exceptions among their kind.

The people of the United States are proud of many things, but not of the history of the native Indians. From the time the red men were confidenced by the unctuous Penn, to the present, the rule has been to rob them at every opportunity, after creating the opportunity, and causing it to recur with frequency.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

Queer how a little success flabbies up a man. The thought came to me today after I had had a talk with J. Ben Caramel, the well known banker and broker of our town. J. Ben waved his hand at me importantly from the door of his limousine as I walked down town.

"I want you to come in and see me some day about that Filgibbons tract," he said.

For a moment I was about to say, "Certainly, Mr. Caramel. What day would be convenient for you?" And then I looked at J. Ben and I changed my mind.

"Jimmy," I said, "we can do all the consulting there is to do in ten seconds by the watch. I've named my price. Will you pay it? And if you will not, let me bid you a very fair good-day."

Jimmy kicked in. I knew Jimmy would. He had to have that tract and he knew it, and we both knew I was twisting his ears in the price I'm making him pay. For, although I liked Jimmy Caramel, I have considered J. Ben Caramel, banker and broker, a poor, fatheaded mutt. He was lucky. He made his money through no thought or work of his own and he is a rich man. But he has deteriorated because of it.

His eyes are loose and red-rimmed and shifty, and his cheeks are fat and pendulous, and his jowls hang down. He used to be a nice, trim, up-and-coming young man. Now he eats too much and he drinks too much and he smokes too much; but, above all, he poses too much. He is trying to make the world believe that he is in the J. Ben class, whereas in his heart he knows that he is a Jimmy and always will be. And the strain is beginning to tell on him.

It seems to me that nine newly-rich men out of ten who begin to put on airs do so because they feel themselves cats in strange garrets. They do not know how to live up to their new dignities and new responsiblities. Look at the lines around their eyes for a proof.

Fear. That is what is written in those lines. Fear. And fear is a corrosive acid.

MUSIC MEMORY PRIZE COLLECTION

As the Glendale Daily Press was the first to back the music memory contest and head the list of contributors to the prize fund, it is glad to give the second good turn that the first good turn deserves and, is therefore placing on its counter a box into which patrons who want to encourage Glendale young people to continue their good work in memorizing fine musical compositions, can drop whatever small amounts they feel inclined to contribute without publicity.

Meanwhile other volunteer contributions are coming in. Mrs. Dora Gibson, chairman of the contest committee and head of the music department of Glendale High, is giving $5 as a special prize for winners in the fifth and sixth grades, who, she feels, should be given special recognition for their good work. Mrs. E. W. Kinney, a member of the judging committee, has also given $5 toward the prize fund, and Mrs. Warren Roberts, treasurer of the Glendale Music club, who has been greatly interested in the contest, has given $3.

The silver pins to be given all winners have been ordered through Arthur Dibbern, the Glendale jeweler, who is furnishing them at wholesale price, donating all his legitimate profit as his contribution to the prize fund.

There will be a brief program opening about 2 o'clock, songs, and short talks. Dr. George H. MacNeill, president, will preside and have charge of the day. The main purpose will be to have a good time and to let the people do the talking. We want to see all the tourists and visitors from the old home. Bring your basket well filled.

Coffee will be served free to all who buy the silk souvenir badges. Each one who learns of this is asked to pass the word along. Further information may be had of C. H. SEWER IDEA WINS SUPPORT ager of South Pasadena, has made a special study of the subject and I believe we are reaching some definite conclusions that will go a long way toward solving the problem.

"I do not know whether it is possible to carry out the ideas as suggested by the editorial, but I am absolutely in favor of a great trunk line that would be accessible to the different communities lying along this trunk, in addition to the city of Los Angeles, and I would suggest that you forward a copy of this letter to the editor of the paper, but it would be much better for him to send a representative to the regional planning conference and hear the report of this committee. The conference will be held at the Virgina hotel at Long Beach from 10 o'clock in the morning until late afternoon."

The opening gun in the work of carrying out the plan for efficient sewage disposal from the various cities in Los Angeles county was fired at the Regional Planning conference that was held at Long Beach Saturday, this being the second session of this conference ever held.

The matter of sewage disposal is of paramount interest to the cities of Los Angeles county at this time. Other questions are put in the shade by this matter, upon which the safety of the residents of this entire section is hung. Each city and community in Southern California is trying desperately to solve this question of sewage disposal. Each locality has, up to this time, been reaching out almost blinding for relief, but none has been found. But those who are behind this new move believe that at last the light of relief is seen.

The proposed plan is for all sections of the county to join in a plan to construct a mammoth outfall sewer, a connection which will be made to each of the cities of Southern California. It is proposed further to maintain, at different points along this sewer reduction plants, so that the commercial values of the sewage may be retained.

R. V. Orbison, city manager of South Pasadena, gave a very enlightening talk on sanitation, and explained this sewer problem in full. City Engineer John A. Griffin of Los Angeles stated that the city of Los Angeles is willing and anxious to co-operate with the outlying district in the carrying out of a plan of this character.

The first move in a plan of this character is to secure county legislation that will make a proposition of this kind possible. A committee to get matters of this kind in shape and to endeavor to secure this legislation was appointed and it is this committee that will "start the ball rolling." An effort will be made in this proposed legislation to make it impossible for any of the different cities of Southern California to build anything along the sewer line that is not in accord with the general outfall sewer plan. This, it is claimed, will assure the success of the project. After the main sewer has been constructed the different cities will "tap in" just as soon as their individual sewer section is completed.

Major John A. Griffin, engineer for the city of Los Angeles, spoke at length of the need of Los Angeles county for a topographical map of the entire county. He proposed that the county appropriate $90,000 to secure one of these maps. He stated that when this county appropriation is made that the government will contribute $3000 to the work.

This proposal was favorably voted on by the representatives with the exception of the delegation from Glendale. Glendale representatives did not vote on this measure. One of the delegates said this morning that in his mind there are so many other things that the county and communities need far worse than a topographical map is needed that he could not vote in favor of the proposition.

REV. POUNDS TALKS AT CHRISTIAN CHURCH

Pastor of Hiram, Ohio Church Urges Making of Wills

The auditorium of Central Christian church was filled to the utmost capacity Sunday morning when Rev. John E. Pounds, for 25 years pastor of the Christian church of Hiram, Ohio, where one of the great colleges is located, preached a remarkable sermon on "Some Neglected Duties."

He stressed particularly the neglect of Christian people to make their wills in ampe time so as make sure that the money which they leave at death is not used to tear down the kingdom. He related several instances of his own knowledge where Christian men and women who for many years had used their surplus funds in deeds of charity and Christian kindness, had died, childless, leaving no wills and the property descended to distant relatives who were either atheists or non-believers and who used the funds awarded them by the inheritance laws in debauchery or other non-Christian acts.

The speaker held that it was a solemn duty of all Christians to make wills in early or middle life when their faculties are at their strongest and their business acumen the keenest.

He said, they should, of course, make ample provision for their children or other dependent heirs and then devise the remainder of their gains to Christian objects, either for the furthering of evangelistic work or the support of [illegible] education.

[illegible] illustration of the [illegible] money for Christian [illegible] the speaker was [illegible] woman in one of [illegible] who left $500 [illegible] purpose. This [illegible] her surviving sister to [illegible] Loos, afterward the head of [illegible] sylvania University, who devoted it to the education of two young Canadians, who afterwards turned out to be the strongest Christian workers the disciples of Christ have had in all their history. One of these was the late Archibald McLean.

Rev. Pounds' address created a profound impression on his audience, moving them to tears at times and more than once expressed a determination to heed his advice without further delay.

MATTHEWS CANDY WINS PATRONS

In the opening of the Matthews confectionery at the corner of Broadway and Orange street, Saturday, Glendale secures an institution that is a real credit to Glendale. Mr. Matthews comes to Glendale with a supply of experience gleaned through 35 years of actual manufacture of candies of the highest character, and he is giving the people of Glendale the benefit of his advanced knowledge along this line.

The opening of this establishment Saturday was a brilliant affair. All day long there was a steady stream of customers going in and out of the store, while music from a Victrola added life to the occasion.

One of the grandest arrays of candies ever seen in Glendale is now on display at the Matthews store, and everything has been made in the candy kitchen at the rear of this establishment.

One of the pleasing features of the opening was the prices that are being charged for the various candies. It is indeed seldom that sweets of this character are sold at such low figures. Low prices, unexcelled quality and efficient service are points on which this firm lays special emphasis.

DORAN P.-T. A. MEET

The Doran Street Parent-Teacher association will meet Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the school. The main speaker of the afternoon will be A. A. Macurda of Los Angeles, who will speak on "Why We Send Our Children to School."

It is hoped for a good attendance as Mr. Macurda is a fine speaker and has an interesting message to convey. Every one is cordially invited.

GAS RANGES VARY SAYS MURPHY

"If every home in Glendale had a 'good Spark gas range' the people of this city would be the happiest in the world," said William P. Murphy. "We handle this and also the Wherley and Garland ranges, which are among the best made in the country. We believe we have the best line of stoves in Glendale today, and our line of heaters is second to none. Then the biggest thing about the whole affair is that everything is sold at prices that are a source of surprise to those who have 'looked around.' We sell both used and new stoves. Every stove is unconditionally guaranteed, set up and installed."

Everybody knows "Murphy." He has been in business in Glendale for several years and during that time has continued to furnish bargains to every caller. He sells almost everything in the way of household furniture. Every room [illegible] home is taken care of from [illegible] room to the rear screen [illegible] has a good line of [illegible] this time [illegible] excellent flat-top [illegible] a thousand and [illegible] store, and this is only [illegible] the story.

CAR CRASH KILLS MANY CHICKENS

A large touring car, said by witnesses to the accident to have cut the corner at San Fernando road and Grand View avenue this morning crashed into a small truck carrying 100 baby chickens, killing 12 of the future egg foundries.

According to a witness of the accident the touring car struck the truck at the street intersection and hurled it to the opposite curb, wrecking the truck and killing several of the chickens. The touring car was driven by W. L. Martin of this city while S. Berkingsale also of Glendale, drove the truck.

BARBARA'S

OH! YES, that meat I bought at CASWELL'S GATEWAY MEAT MARKET, corner of San Fernando Road and Brand Blvd., for I've discovered that Mr. Caswell carries only the very first quality of fine meats—and the freshest, although his prices are truly exceptionally reasonable! "See Caswell for your Sunday dinner meat" is not only a slogan but a firm rule in our household, for we've come to appreciate the value of dependability in a butcher! It pays to single out a shop that stands for Quality, Service and Low Prices—and then continue to deal with them always. Then, another advantage in buying at the Gateway Market is the fact that you can simply phone Glendale 2361-W when you've not time to go down there, and they will deliver almost immediately.

--*

POTATO SOUP

Six large potatoes sliced and boiled in enough water to cover, season with salt, and pepper, a little butter, and 1 cup of sweet cream or milk.

--*

DO YOU KNOW, sometimes I just crave a well-flavored meat loaf—and 'twas in that frame of mind that I dropped in at the RELIABLE MEAT MARKET, 1502 South San Fernando Road, this morning. Mr. Danner takes great pride in the unexcelled quality of his meats, so I found the hamburger (which he makes himself) no exception to the rule! It is fresh ground every morning, of fresh, choice meat—and sold for only 15 cents the pound! And, at breakfast time, you'll also enjoy a serving of pure pork sausage, bought at the Reliable Meat Market, for that, too, is home-made!

--*

BEAN SOUP

Two quarts of water, and use a smoked ham bone or bacon, 1 pint beans; when cooked add two spoons flour and 1 egg stirred together and stir into the soup.

--*

AND, REALLY, IT'S NO WONder that "once a customer always a booster" is true of those who patronize the GLENDALE MEAT MARKET, 632-34 East Broadway, as they carry only the very best of high grade meats and A-1 steer beef! Then, too, Mr. Ingledue is unusually particular that all his meats be carefully inspected, thus maintaining a certain high standard for quality and freshness! About prices? Well, my dear, when you've considered quality and service, you'll agree, I think, that Glendale Market meats are practically the cheapest in town!

GOOD EVENING, MRS. GLENDALE! Well, here is Barbara, once again back from her day's shopping—returned from her little journeyings through the markets and stores of Glendale! And her Basket—yes, indeed, you'll be interested in knowing all the goodies and dainties she's bringing you—all the tasty foodstuffs to tempt the most fastidious palate—as well as appetizinf recipes for their preparation! Come, let us unpack BARBARA'S BASKET that we may find the treasures she's brought for us!

COME NOW, just taste that wonderful pie—doesn't it actually melt in your mouth? Yes, it's from the SANITARY HOME BAKERY, 1102 East Broadway,—the bakers whose goods are all truly "home-made"! No matter whether it be pies, cakes, cookies, cinnamon rolls, bread or rolls, you can absolutely depend upon the ingredients used being the best to be had—and the purest! The Sanitary Home Bakers use only fresh ranch eggs and rich, creamy milk in everything they cook! And on Sundays, particularly, you will vnd them a satisfaction, for all goods are baked daily, including Sundays!

--*

APPLE SALAD

Use equal parts of tart apples, celery and nut meats. English walnuts preferred. Use any good salad dressing and mix just before serving.

--*

OH! YES, YOU WILL ENJOY a delicious cake from the PURITY BAKERY, 718 East Broadway, much better than one of your own, for this reason: Baking, at best, is a hot, tiresome task, and when you're anxious to be off on a Sunday trip, or guests are coming for dinner, it is indeed a strain to have to stop and carefully make a cake. While on the other hand, you can just send one of the children to the Purity Bakery for a wonderful home-made cake, baked fresh that morning! No, it isn't as expensive as baking at home, and they are even open on Sundays!

AND AS FOR THE GATEWAY MARKET GROCERY—well, my dear, here is the result of one visit there! You know, it's such a satisfaction to do one's shopping there, for they've always a full stock of the best grade goods at moderate prices! No matter what you may need or want, at the Gateway Market Grocery you'll surely find it—and a number of more interesting suggestions! And when you're in a hurry, just phone Glendale 2361-W, and they'll fill you order and deliver it immediately. That's one good thing about the Gateway Grocery—all telephone orders are accorded the same attention and service as a personal visit!

CREAM SAUCE

One-half pint of cream, 1-3 cup sugar, 1-3 cup milk, 1-2 teaspoon of vanilla, 1 egg. Beat egg until stiff and add milk, sugar and vinalla, and lastly add cream.

--*

YUM-M-M—here's a big bag of home-made doughnuts from the GATEWAY MARKET BAKERY, at the corner of San Fernando Road and Brand Blvd. You know, they do all their own baking, right in their own sanitary kitchen, from real old-fashioned home recipes!—and the consequence is a confection that is entirely wholesome as well as infinitely delicious and tasty! Do drop in at the Bakery Department next time you're shopping at the Gateway Market—for you'll find their bread, cake, pies and rolls all unusually appetizing!

--*

BAKED EGGS

Carefully break eggs in buttered granite pie pan, add salt, pepper and bits of butter; bake until white is set.

--*

THE VIRGINIA BAKE SHOP—doesn't that bring to your mind visions of all sorts and kinds of goodies—highly spiced pastries, wholesome home-made bread and just all manner of dainties to tempt the most fastidious palate? And that's just what the VIRGINIA BAKE SHOP does stand for—they are known far and wide for the unexcelled quality of their products, the unusual nutriment and delightful flavor in their bread, the deliciousness of the cakes and pies which they make, and, above all, for the absolute purity of the ingredients used in the making! Now that the weather is warm, don't try to bake at home over a hot, messy stove, but just drop in at 632 East Broadway, the Virginia Bake Shop, in the afternoon, and select your desserts for dinner!

Becomes Center for Installations in the South End of Glendale

C. L. Brenkman, proprietor of the Brenkman Electric Shop, 1524 South San Fernando road, is busy installing electric fixtures in the many new homes that are going up in the southern end of the city. His store is becoming a veritable beehive of good things, especially for the kiddies, as he has recently added to his already many lines a complete line of Easter novelties, including Easter eggs galore.

New electric fixtures are arriving almost daily, all of which are meeting with the approval of the many satisfied customers. Mr. Brenkman believes that now that Mazda globes have been reduced it will have the effect of enabling the people to have proper and efficient lighting in their homes and stores.

This firm has just taken over the agency for the Apex electric sweeper, and already many have been sold. Mr. Brenkman has just made arrangements with the manufacturers whereby this excellent sweeper may be purchased on the installment plan.

When talking on the subject of price, Mr. Brenkman says:

"Any article in my store may be purchased at a price that cannot be duplicated in Los Angeles, so why should the people of Glendale go to that city to purchase [illegible] is that the people [illegible] call at our store and prove it."

GATEWAY DEALERS ARE LIVE FORCES IN SOUTH END

New Garage on San Fernando Road Is Planned

According to Messrs. Heal and Mentzer, the realtors of the "Gateway" things are simply humming along. This firm has made an excellent showing and this morning was very enthusiastic over the outlook for the future.

A deal that was recently put through by this firm consisted of the purchase of a lot at the corner of San Fernando road and Fernando court by Phil Pellegrini of Kingman, Arizona. Mr. Pellegrini will erect a first class garage on this property, handling all of the various accessories. The plans for the proposed structure are well under way, and within a very short time construction will be started. Mr. Pellegrini, after a thorough survey of Glendale, and in a radius of about 25 miles from this place, has decided that the intersection of Los Feliz road and San Fernando road is the busiest corner in this vicinity. This is why he pins his faith in the future on the location.

LAURA CHOCOLATE SHOP OPENS FOUNTAIN

Installation of Thirst Quencher Announced in South Glendale

Laura's Chocolate Shop, 1519 South Fernando road, has just installed a wonderful new soda fountain, which will enable this firm to serve the public more efficiently than ever before. The patronage of this firm is increasing steadily and the proprietor is looking forward to a very successful summer season.

G. Danford of Los Angeles, has secured the exclusive agency for the L. G. Grauman company soda fountains, and although only 18 are available Laura's was the first store to have one installed. This firm expresses entire satisfaction with this new fountain and features in connection. Refrigeration which enables them to serve ice cold drinks at all times. Accessibility to the various syrup containers is featured in addition to many other valuable accessories. Business with this firm is very good, and the prospects for a successful 1922 are unusually bright.

A sermon that is long drawn out is apt to be narrow.

OUCH! BACKACHE! RUB LUMBAGO OR STIFFNESS AWAY

St. Jacob's Oil stops any pain, so when your back is sore and lame, or lumbago, sciatica or rheumatism has you stiffened up, don't suffer! Get a small trial bottle of old, honest St. Jacob's Oil at any drug store, pour a little in your hand, and rub it right on your aching back; and by the time you count fifty the soreness and lameness is gone.

Don't stay crippled! This soothing, penetrating oil needs to be used only once. It takes the pain right out and ends the misery. It is magical, yet absolutely harmless, and doesn't burn the skin.

Nothing else stops lumbago, sciatica, backache or rheumatism so promptly. It never disappoints!

RUSSELL-PIERCE FURNITURE CO. IS ACTIVE

Product of South Glendale Factory Makes Strong Appeal

The Russell-Pierce Furniture company, at the intersection of South Central avenue and the San Fernando road, reports business very brisk. This firm has many new features in the way of furniture, and these have a great deal to do with present business conditions.

The castle apartments at 227 North Brand boulevard was recently completely equipped by this firm and the owners expressed their entire satisfaction with the Glendale-made furniture. Satisfaction is absolutely guaranteed by this firm in connection with every piece of furniture that is turned out and a business conducted on this basis is sure to grow. Another direct result of this policy is the large number of orders that are being received daily. The Russell-Pierce plant is rapidly taking on the appearance of a display room that is surpassed by nothing of the kind in Glendale. This firm has engaged several "high powered" salesmen and are at all times at the service of the people.

NEW DRUG STORE AT GATEWAY WINS LOCAL TRADE

C. F. Tompkins, Optimistic As to Revival of General Business

The month that has just closed was satisfactory in every way to C. T. Tompkins, proprietor of the new drug store at the "Gateway," 1740 South San Fernando road.

"With the coming of warm weather will come a revival in business if I am not mistaken," said Mr. Tompkins. "It will have a tendency to quicker and more numerous sales. I have explicit faith in the southern end of Glendale. From the liberal patronage that has been extended to us we have reason to be optimistic with regard to the future. We will continue to serve our patrons to the best of our ability and give to the people of South Glendale a drug service second to none."

EVERSON & FRAZIER MOVE

John Everson and C. M. Frazier, attorneys at law, have moved from the former office in the Flower block to the Cole & Dameral building at 103-A North Brand boulevard. These gentlemen are well known in Glendale, having been practicing here for several years.

A man seldom notices the smiling countenance opposite him if the omelet is spoiled. But what a difference if the omelet is perfect and the countenance is spoiled.

DISCIPLESHIP OF PETER IS REV. PRESTON'S TEXT

Rev. Preston Preaches a Striking Sermon at Pacific M. E.

Rev. Harley G. Preston preached a striking sermon on the persistence of Peter at the Pacific Avenue Methodist church yesterday. He said in part:

"Distant discipleship—'And Peter followed afar off.' (Luke 22: 54.)

"We find something commendable in this. The impulsive and energetic Peter did not exhaust his zeal in that unfortunate sword-stroke of his; nor was his zeal quenched by the rebuke of the Master. In the business world the most successful men are those who have come through the school of discipline. John D. Rockefeller was asked one time what was one of the greatest secrets of his success. He replied that with him it was in calling about him the greatest and smartest men he could find and taking them into his confidence and getting their counsel.

"The knocks and bumps we get are the making of us. If we turn them that way. And so with the Apostle Peter, we find that while he failed at first he succeeded in a wonderful way later by profiting by his mistakes and the reproofs of his Master.

"But in this distant discipleship we find something incomplete. Peter wanted to be near enough to his Master to know what the end would be, but he wished to be far enough away to avoid danger to himself. He consulted his fears.

"When a man is weak in faith and can as yet only follow Christ at a distance, he should avoid all dangerous places and the company of those most likely to prove a snare to him. If Peter had not gone to the high priests' palace and sat down with the servants he would not have denied his Lord and Master as he did. May those who have been distant disciples draw near to their Lord in renewed penitence and devotedness of spirit."

FOREIGN MISSIONARY MEET

The Women's Foreign Missionary society of the Central Avenue Methodist church will meet Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Clark A. Bowen, on West Garfield avenue.

Mrs. Bertha Brinker, just returned from Manila, P. I., will give an illustrated address on "Life in the Philippines." Mrs. Brinker will wear the costume of a Filipino woman and will have many interesting curios to exhibit.

All ladies interested in missions whether a member of this society or not, are cordially invited to be present.

PHILATHEA CLASS MEET

The Philathea class of the First Methodist church will hold its class meeting and cafeteria supper Tuesday night at the home of Miss Caldwell, 326 West Wilson avenue. A business session will follow the supper, and glee club practice will be held. Every Philathean is urged to be present.

NATIONAL W.C.T.U. WINS AMERICAN LEGION THANKS

Receipt of Four Thousand Dollars Acknowledged by MacNider

Believing that the permanently disabled veterans of the world war were most deserving of aid, the W. C. T. U. recently sent the balance of its patriotic war fund, $4000, to the American Legion to be used in furthering the comfort of our national heroes.

The national executive committee of the American Legion has just sent resolutions of appreciation beautifully engraved on heavy vellum and bearing the seal and colors of the organization. The resolutions are as follows:

Whereas, the National Woman's Christian Temperance union has generously offered the balance of its patriotic fund in the sum of $4000 to the American Legion for the benefit of permanently disabled comrades; and

Whereas, this gift expresses, not money's worth alone, but sentiment and feeling which are beyond value;

Therefore, be it resolved, that the gratitude of the American Legion be conveyed to them by this resolution duly inscribed and submitted by the proper national officers.

(Signed) Hanford MacNider,
National Commander, Ch'm'n.
Lemuel Bolles,
National Adjutant, Secretary.

DISABLED SOLDIER BENEFIT STAGED AT RIALTO

Tuesday night will be disabled veteran night at the big Rialto tent show. The management of this company has offered to give 50 per cent of the gross receipts of the sale of tickets for the evening to the disabled boys at Thornycroft. These boys are turning out in force and are endeavoring to sell enough tickets to fill the tent to overflowing tomorrow night. And when these fellows start anything they generally put it over.

There are comparatively few people in Glendale who realize the true character of the shows that are being put on by the Rialto stock company. "The Hottentot" which was given by this company Saturday evening was one of the finest plays ever seen in Glendale. If this same play, put on in the same excellent manner, had been presented at the Morosco in Los Angeles, the prices would have been 50 cents to $2, instead of 25 and 50 cents, and the spectators would have considered their money well spent.

So, if one of the disabled boys calls be sure to buy a couple of tickets, whether or not you intend to go. But if possible everyone purchasing tickets should be present. A new show will be put on each evening during the remainder of this company's stay in Glendale.

ARMY AND NAVY HAS GOOD START

Many People Attend the Opening of the New Headquarters

The grand opening of the new home of the Army and Navy store of Glendale met with a big response of the people of Glendale on Saturday. The new location of this firm, at the corner of Brand boulevard and Harvard, has been especially arranged for particular needs of this company and as a result it is one of the best army and navy suburban stores in Southern California.

The crowd that greeted the proprietors of this establishment in their new store was very encouraging and promises an excellent future so far as the sale of goods carried by this company is concerned.

Just a few months ago this store opened in Glendale. It located in a small room on the west side of Brand boulevard. From the very start the firm has done an excellent business. The patronage has grown so rapidly that more room was absolutely needed, this resulting in the opening of the new store.

TUJUNGA HAS MANY NEW HOMES

Hagemans Have Moved Into New Eight Room House

TUJUNGA, April 3.—Mr. and Mrs. Holmes Hageman and family have recently moved into their new home on Stevens Way. Holcomb, Illinois, was formerly the home of the Hagemans, but on a visit to California they were so attracted to Tujunga that they disposed of their interests in the eastern city and came here to make their home.

Their new home is of two stories and has eight large rooms. The walls are plastered and the woodwork is finished in light stain. Many modern features are included in the house.

Mr. Hageman owns a half acre and expects to build three or four small bungalows at a later date.

There are five girls in the Hageman family, four of whom attend the Tujunga school.

Wallace M. Morgan is rapidly completing a 5-room house set back in the canyon on his properity on Los Angeles avenue.

The house is unique in many features and will open onto a large cement terrace built beneath the oak trees.

A winding driveway has been made leading back from Los Robles avenue, where several choice lots have been subdivided.

Several neighborhoods have announced their intention of forming a club to compete for the $20 prize of shrubbery to be given by the Verdugo Hills Record for the neighborhood showing the most noted improvement during the next year. It is expected that other clubs will be formed within a short time and that parkways and yards will soon begin to show the effects of the competition.

Miss Frances Morgan entertained at an informal affair on Saturday evening in honor of her week-end guest, Miss Leona Fechtner. Music and dancing were enjoyed during the evening. The guests included Don Wieman, Miss Helen Franke, Carroll Parcher, Miss Morgan and Miss Fechtner.

A business meeting of the T. N. T. club will be held tomorrow night in the basement of the church. The club is planning a dance and other entertainments and it is desired that the full membership be present.

Bruce and Bernard Anawalt of the Johnson-Anawalt Lumber company with yards at Montrose and Tujunga are building a house at the corner of Marshal and Los Robles streets.

Foley's Friendly Fancies

JAMES W. FOLEY

THE GOOD OLD WORLD

Old World, you've been friendly and good;
You've given me flowers and fresh air;
You have showed me the beauty of field and ol wood,
And your June days were balmy and fair.
You have showered me with blossoms in Spring,
And your brooks that have bubbled and purled
Have lifted my spirit and taught it to sing,
Yes, you've been a right friendly Old World.

Yes, you've been a right friendly old place,
You have stormed some, but mostly you've smiled,
You have been harsh sometimes, with a frown on your face,
But you've mostly been mellow and mild.
You have painted your pictures for me
That I've looked upon oft with delight,
The forest and valley and mountain and sea,
And what stars you have hung in the night!

Yes, you've been such a friendly old soul,
With your turf and your surf and your sky,
And on through the ages you patiently roll
For so tiny a mortal as I.
You've been patient and steadfast and true,
And what grist you have ground at your mill!
So when there's some job that a man ought to do
I'm glad of the chance—and I will.

SECOND DYNAMOS BANQUET IS SUCCESS

One Hundred and Sixty-five Participate in Big Feast

At 7:30 Friday night the doors to the banquet hall of the Glendale Presbyterian church opened to admit a hungry throng. The new Dynamos officers and the club led by Harold Majors, the incoming president, filed in—taking their places at the head table. They were followed by the other participants—the dynamos orchestra playing as they entered.

EARL P. HAMMOND
Retiring President of the Dynamos Club.

Rev. Tinning, the assistant pastor, gave the opening prayer, after which the silverware began to clatter.

Earl P. Hammond, the retiring president, asked for quiet while he told of the work of the Dynamos club during the past term under his leadership. He also spoke of the fact that some of the fellows at the banquet were going to the dance at the high school, but had been led to come to the banquet instead. This was received with hand clapping by the people.

The Dynamos orchestra then gave some selections. These were followed by a solo by Joe Rhoades, the Dynamos singer. Mr. Foth, of the Bible Institute, then gave a solo, being accompanied by his wife.

Earl P. Hammond then called for a few words from Harold Majors, the incoming president, who told something of his plans for the coming year. He said he wanted that everything the club did this term would be to the honor and glory of Jesus Christ. A harp solo was then given by Lois Welch. This was followed by the installation of the new officers by Rev. Edmonds.

The following officers were installed: Harold Majors, president; C. G. Farrow, secretary-treasurer; Willard Goertz, assistant secretary-treasurer; Orrin Barnes, corresponding secretay; employment bureau secretary, Graham Tinning; secretary rolls and Sunday publications, Thomas McClellan; music committee—(vocal) Joe Rhoades, (instrument)) Joe Maier; social committee, LeRoy Mason; social service committtee, Percy Jewell; flower committee, Gail Kennedy; devotional committee, George Stanley; and athletic committee, Kenneth Wilde; (above named being chairmen of committees).

This was followed by another solo by Mr. Foth. Mr. D. L. Foster, superintendent of the club, then introduced Dr. Worton of Belgium, who told of his missionary work there. Mr. Dolberg then took a flashlight of the banquet followed by the closing prayer by Rev. Edmonds.

A note of thanks was given to the girls who waited on the table, to the women who prepared the meal and to all who had made it possible for the banquet.

The Dynamos colors of purple and gold were carried out in the decorations and food by Earl P. Hammond. Drapes were hung, flowers, signs and favor baskets on the table with almonds and purple and gold mints, which were all carried out in the club colors.

Mrs. J. J. Davis with some other women of the church prepared the following three course dinner: First course: fruit cocktail; second course, chicken pie, apple salad, purple cabbage Welch style, and riced potatoes. Third course: purple and gold ice cream and cake.

Under the direction of Miss Myra Johns the following girls waited on the tables: Ethel Campbell, Zoa Thompson, Lynda Goertz, Hope Ireland, Helen Engle, Hettie Orth, Lois Scylur, Inez Harrison, and Marjorie Smith.

This was the second annual banquet of the Dynamos club. At the banquet this year nearly three times as many participated as did last year which shows something of the growth of the club.

EIGHTEEN 'Y' BOYS TAKE LONG HIKE WITH KELLEY

Travel With Secretary From Santa Monica to the Hills

Secretary Rex Kelley reports a fine five-mile hike and seashore outing by eighteen Y. M. C. A. boys in grammar school groups last Saturday. They left Glendale about 8 a. m. and motored to the Pacific Palisades near Santa Monica and went from there to the beach, where the boys played around on the sand for a while and then hiked back through the Santa Monica hills for about five miles.

This evening the boys in groups under F. H. Wilcox and C. H. Muhleman, who meet in the Tropico Presbyterian church, will be addressed by Dr. J. Anderson, who will talk on the human body and its care.

Hi-Y boys in the deputation team have an invitation to take charge of the Sunday services at the George Junior Republic near Chino, some time in the near future. The Republic is a farm school for boys which has self-government modelled after the form of a republic. April 23 is the day selected and the Glendale boys will spend the day there and will have entire charge of the services, including the talks and the music.

This noon the board of Y. M. C. A. directors will meet to make final arrangements for the annual Bible study examination to be held in the First Methodist church Thursday night. It is an examination prepared by the international committee in New York and will probably be conducted here by David Black. Suitable prizes will be given the boys who make the highest grades.

The date of the Father and Son banquet has been set for April 18, and Dr. von Kleinsmid is to be the speaker.

Next Saturday about 5 o'clock all the leaders of the Glendale district, which includes Eagle Rock and Burbank, will meet at the home of David Black, president of the board, for a conference and beefsteak barbecue. Each leader will be accompanied by the president of his group. This outing is an annual affair to which leaders look forward, and it will probably be a jolly as well as a profitable function.

A man may not be able to find his wife's pocket, but she always knows where his are located.
